State Auditor outlines DelDOT problems

The state auditor says DelDOT's capital budget process is out of whack, and that's part of what has created a deficit in the billions in the transportation trust fund. Tom Wagner presented his audit to the Joint Bond Bill Committee Monday in Dover. Wagner also says DelDOT didn't allow for inflation on current projects, and that caused cost overruns. He adds that many DelDOT staff and outside planners don't understand the processes for managing the capital transportation program. And finally, Wagner says the agency needs to update its accounting systems.
